PREFACE

TO

NEW AND REVISED EDITION.

It is now more than half a century ago, when, on the 15th July, 1829, sitting at the breakfast-table of some friends in pleasant Somersetshire, regret was expressed that there existed no Concordance to Shakespeare; whose works formed the Bible of the Intellectual World. Eager in everything, I resolved there and then that I would write this desired Concordance; and that very forenoon, while joining my friends in their walk through the fields, I took a volume of the Poet and a pencil with me, and jotted down the first lines of my book under B:—

“Boatswain, have care.” Temp. i. 1, &c.

Sixteen years of hard work, but delightful work, sufficed to complete the manuscript.

In deference to the wishes of Mr. Charles Knight, its original publisher, I allowed the name on the Title-page to be printed “Shakspere;” but now, in this new and perfected Edition, I substitute the spelling “Shakespeare” as that which was given in the First Folio Edition of his Plays and in the First Edition of his Sonnets, and as that which my beloved husband and I have adopted in all our works upon the unrivalled Dramatist, including our latest, “The Shakespeare Key,” which forms the Companion Volume to the “Concordance.”

The “Concordance” made its earliest appearance in Monthly Parts (the list of subscribers to which was headed by the King of Prussia); but when it was completed, the work obtained distinguished notice from various reviewers, among whom were John Forster and the Rev. N. J. Halpin; the latter writing two elaborate and long critiques in a leading Dublin paper. Leigh Hunt gave kind and fanciful prediction that his young friend “Victorinella’s” name would go down to the future on the same page with her great Master’s; Douglas Jerrold playfully assuring her that she must “expect a kiss from Shakespeare” when she should meet him in Paradise; Professor Craik making handsome mention of the book in the Preface to his “English of Shakespeare;” and Dr. Ingleby writing: “It is now fifteen years since I first began to use systematically your ‘Concordance to Shakespeare.’ I have, in my time, been astonished by many marvels of literature; but the completeness and accuracy of your book still seem to me to place it on an eminence by itself, to which no triumph of mere labour and care can approach."

Other evidences of general estimation—public as well as private—attended the progress of the book. A Testimonial Chair was presented by several Ladies and Gentlemen of the United States of America (among other honoured names, those of Austin Allibone, William Cullen Bryant, Charlotte Cushman, Washington Irving, H. W. Longfellow, George Ticknor, R. Grant White, and Daniel Webster; who, in his letter on the occasion, sportively said: "She has treasured up every word of Shakespeare as if he were her lover, and she were his") through the Honourable Abbott Lawrence, then American Ambassador in England; while the sixth annual report of the Shakespeare Society (1846?) printed the following minute:—"The Chairman then announced that the Council had evinced their admiration and appreciation of Mrs. Cowden-Clarke, whose 'Concordance to Shakespeare' had rendered such service to the cause, by presenting to that lady a complete set of the works published by that Society from its commencement."

Such were some of the tokens of approval given during past years; and even quite lately, a periodical of the present day, in its "Echoes of the Week," has made frequent allusion to the use and excellence of the "Complete Concordance to Shakespeare."

Letters still flow over the Atlantic, telling me that a copy of the book holds place on shelves of noble libraries, while a second is kept for daily thumbing on library-tables by good Shakespearians and true. Perhaps no work of reference, for the last nearly fifty years, has been in such constant and such affectionate use; because no writer is so constantly and so affectionately in all men's thoughts as Shakespeare.

I have been asked to record these honours awarded to the work; and on this bright morning of Valentine's Day—an Italian sun shining upon me—it is with gratitude and happy pride that I find myself permitted thus to celebrate The Golden Wedding of my readers with

Their faithful servant,

Mary Cowden-Clarke.

VILLA NOVELLO, GENOA,
14th Feb., 1881

P R E F A C E.

SHAKESPEARE, the most frequently quoted, because the most universal-minded Genius that ever lived, of all Authors best deserves a complete Concordance to his Works. To what subject may we not with felicity apply a motto from this greatest of Poets? The Divine, commending the efficacy and "twofold force of prayer—to be forestalled, ere we come to fall, or pardoned being down;" the Astronomer, supporting his theory by allusions to "the moist star, upon whose influence Neptune's empire stands;" the Naturalist, striving to elucidate a fact respecting the habits of "the singing masons," or "heavy-gaited toads;" the Botanist, lecturing on the various properties of the "small flower within whose infant rind poison hath residence, and med'cine power," or on the growth of "summer grass, fastest by night, unseen, yet crescive in his faculty;" the Philosopher, speculating upon "the respect that makes calamity of so long life," "the dread of something after death, the undiscovered country, from whose bourn no traveller returns;" the Lover, telling his "whispering tale in a fair lady's ear," and vowing the "winnowed purity" and "persistive constancy" of his "heart's dear love;" the Lawyer, discussing some "nice sharp quillet of the law;" the Musician, descanting on the "touches of sweet harmony;" the Painter, describing his art, that "pretty mocking of the life;" the Novel-writer, seeking an illustrative heading to a fresh chapter, "the baby figure of the giant mass to come at large;" the Orator, labouring an emphatic point in an appeal to the passions of assembled multitudes, "to stir men's blood;" the Soldier, endeavouring to vindicate his profession, by vaunting the "pomp and circumstance of glorious war;" or the Humanist, advocating "the quality of mercy," urging that, "to revenge is no valour, but to bear;" and maintaining that "the earth is wronged by man's oppression,"—may all equally adorn their page or emblazon their speech with gems from Shakespeare's works.

To furnish a faithful guide to this rich mine of intellectual treasure, superadding what was defective in my predecessors, Twiss and Ayscough, has been the ambition of a life; and it is hoped that the sixteen years' assiduous labour devoted to the work, during the twelve years' writing,* and the four more bestowed on collating with recent editions and correcting the press, may be found to have accomplished that ambition, and at length produced the great desideratum—a complete Concordance to Shakespeare.

* I cannot refuse myself the pleasure of mentioning that the day which witnessed the conclusion of this task, was the birth-day of the best of mothers—Mary Sabilla Novello; she who forms the glory and happiness of her children; she who first inspired me with a love for all that is good and beautiful, and who therefore may well be said to have originated my devotion to Shakespeare.

The appearance of a Preface with the concluding number of a periodically published work, though it possesses the advantage of affording an opportunity of commenting upon any thing that may have occurred in the course of printing; yet on the other hand, it involves a degree of disadvantage to the author, more especially in the present case, where there was judgment to be exercised in the admission or omission of certain words, and the right of that judgment to be vindicated and explained. The apparent inconsistency of omitting particular words when used in one sense, while they were retained in other instances, could only be accounted for by that discretionary power, which the author must claim in the Preface; where good and sufficient reason could be advanced why that power was not merely exercised for the sake of condensation, but likewise for perspicuity, and the especial benefit of the quoter. For instance, it might at first excite surprise to find so few examples of the word let; but by omitting it as an auxiliary verb (where the simple fact of its being universally joined to another verb of more importance, renders it less likely to suggest itself as a means of reference, as—“let me remember thee what thou hast promised,”) and retaining it merely in its more singular sense, the space gained is the enormous difference between 17 lines and 2184, or six printed pages of three columns each; while at the same time the few important instances in which the word occurs are thus rendered far more clearly apparent and easy of reference.

This was felt to be so valuable an arrangement, that, even during the course of printing, several thousand lines of MS. were cancelled—thus: well, omitted as an adverb, saves about 1550 lines, and leaves clearer the word as a noun, and where it indicates health; it is also retained where a pun is involved, as—“would not this ill do well?”

It must be borne in mind that these omitted references are so frequent, as well as of such insignificance, that their retention would but have encumbered, and (so to say) hidden the other references to the same word of more distinct and unquestionable importance: as an example of this, “my lord,” as a mere title, occurs in the play of Hamlet alone, no fewer than 192 times!

Come, look, marry, pray, truth, truly, and well, when used merely interjectionally, and still and well, as adverbs, are omitted. Like, as an adverb merely conveying a simile, as—“he receives comfort like cold porridge,” from the multiplicity of examples, and because such passages invariably contain words more striking—is omitted. Toward and towards are only retained when used peculiarly.

Titles: as master, mistress, lord, lady, king, count, don, signior, etc., when joined to proper names, are omitted; as are also lord and lady, when used merely as sir and madam. A few verbs and adverbs, as, to be, to have, to do; and beyond, some, never, etc., are omitted, on account of their insignificance, and frequent recurrence; also, oaths and exclamations of small importance, a few peculiar ones only, such as aroint, avaunt, etc., being retained.

All nouns and verbs spelt alike are placed under one heading; and all plural nouns will be found under the same headings with their respective singulars. A few words, such as naught and nought, sallad and sallet, spelt indiscriminately in various editions, are placed under one heading.

When a word recurs on the same subject, and with but little variation of context, in the course of a scene, or stands so closely repeated as inevitably to catch the eye in looking out the passage in the Play, as—"my poverty but not my will consents. I pay thy poverty, and not thy will;" the repetition is merely indicated by the word (rep.) in the Concordance.

The size of the Work has been selected with a view to its ranging with Mr. Charles Knight's popular and beautiful Pictorial Edition of Shakespeare; but it will admit of being cut down so as to conform with the usual octavo volumes.

In Mr. Payne Collier's edition of Shakespeare, he divides the second act of the Midsummer Night's Dream, into two scenes only; but as in most editions it is divided into three, I have adopted the latter mode of reference, merely pointing out the variation here, to avoid any confusion. I avail myself of the present opportunity to offer my thanks publicly to the above-named gentleman, for the kind and handsome manner in which he entrusted me with the then unpublished MS. of his concluding volume, when I took the liberty of applying to him, though unknown, for the purpose of collating his edition with the others, in order to complete my Concordance. Such a mark of confidence was a worthy type of the fraternity of feeling inspired by a close study of our immortal Poet; and it is one of the not least agreeable concomitants of my task, that it has been the means of my receiving generous testimonies of sympathy and encouragement from many of the cleverest men of our age, between whom and myself I could never have hoped for any assimilation, had it not been for the mutual existence of profound veneration and love for the genius of Shakespeare.

Let me not likewise omit to acknowledge (after the fashion of dramatic authors in the preface to their Plays, towards the actors who embody their conceptions) my obligations to my "co-mates and brothers in 'labour'"—the Printers; for though the public can judge of the typographical beauty and accuracy of the pages of the Concordance which they have produced, no one but myself can appreciate their care, minute correctness, and patient assiduity.

Shakespeare himself says: "Most poor matters point to rich ends,"—I trust my humble labour may tend to the "rich end" of furthering a universal study and appreciation of his genius;—in this hope, it only remains for me to take leave of those for whom I have been working so many years (I cannot call them my readers) with an assurance that it has been a labour of love, and that it has been productive of many happy thoughts and aspirations to

Their faithful and obedient servant,

Mary Cowden-Clarke

Mrs. COWDEN-CLARKE writes to the Printers of the Concordance and says that, after having the work constantly in use for upwards of 30 years, she has discovered the omission of the following words and lines, which are really of little consequence, inasmuch as they appear under other words of the same line, except where repeated.

 cuff you, if you strike again ii. 1 in the hole, man, and tunc again iii. 1 as he stooped again to take it up iii. 2 the wench, when he arose again? iii. 2 to me, and across the water again; and thit iii. 2 and fetch our horses back again iv. 5 why, then let's home again; come v. 1 therefore I'll sleep again. Nay, that v. 2 will take again your queen Winter's Tale, i. 2 I'll be long again; and I'll fill up i. 2 come, sir, now am for you again ii. 1 call the queen again. Be certain ii. 1 my rest might come to me again ii. 3 lo, fool again! I'll speak of iii. 2 spirit of the world, give me back again iii. 2 to dance again after a ball iii. 2 which will shame you to give him again iv. 3 and again does nothing, but what he iv. 3 purchase the sight again of dear iv. 3 then recovered again with aqua-vite iv. 3 fit to shore thee again, and that iv. 3 would have him wed again v. 1 bless the bed of majesty again with v. 1

 they are loose again iv. 4 help, to have them bound again iv. 4 brought him to his wits again v. 1 to make of him a formal man again v. 1 yet once again proclaim it publicly v. 1 we came again to hand v. 1 when shall we three meet again Macbeth, i. 1 and thrice again, to make up nine i. 3 i addressed them again to sleep ii. 2 look on't again, I dare not ii. 2 but returns again to night ii. 2 i then comes my fit again ii. 4 we'll hear, ourselves again iii. 4 upon a thought he will again be well iii. 4 but now, they are again, with v. 2 or, be alive again, v. 2 being gone, I am a man again iii. 1

AGAIN—she'll soon be back again Macbeth iii. 3 we may again give to our fathers iv. 2 as long but I'll be here again iv. 2 shalt thou see thy wholesome days again? iv. 3 and again return to bed v. 1
 I tell you yet again, Banquo's v. 3 the very echo, that should applaud again v. 3 again shalt see his good and drow v. 3 edge, I sleanth again unheeded v. 7 were I to get again, madam, I would King John i. 1 bear home that lusty bold again ii. 1 part your mingled colour again ii. 2 and she again wants nothing, to name ii. 2 and congeal again to what it was iii. 1 tell o'er thy tale again iii. 1 then speak again; not all thy former iii. 1 would live again by death of need iii. 1 as now again to snatch our iii. 1 is, to mistake again; though iii. 1 and will again commit them to iii. 4 true, I shall see my boy again iii. 4 and, rising so again, when iii. 4 I did never ask it you again iv. 1 once again we sit, once again crowned iv. 2 but now I breathe again aloft iv. 2 from them to me again. The spirit iv. 2 in signs again partly with sin iv. 3 bright air, put it up again iv. 3 take again from this my hand v. 1 my tongue shall hush again this storm v. 1 return to me again, after they heard v. 2 the precedent to these lords again v. 2 once again; I will be gone again v. 4 welcome home again discarded v. 4
 I say again, if Lewis do win v. 4 by his persuasion are again fallen off v. 5 instantly return with me again v. 7 as some home again, as the v. 7 bids, I should not bid again Richard III. i. 1 return back to their chairs again i. 3 return again, and take an oath i. 3 that speaks thy words again, to do ii. 2 yet again, methinks I see thee ii. 2 the other again is my kinsman ii. 2 here part, that ne'er shall meet again ii. 2 stand upon my kingdom once again iii. 2 still so much blood thither come again iii. 2 agedly hater, again in arms to come iii. 2 speak again to alter this, for counsel is iii. 2 and lands restored again, he freely iii. 3 should take it off again with words iii. 3 restored again to all his land iv. 1 that again, to be a man of peace iv. 1 and wash him fresh again with v. 1 wilt know again, being ne'er so little v. 1 give me mine own again; 'twere v. 1 speak it again; twice saying pardon v. 3 and then again; it is as hard to come v. 3 then am I kinged again; and, by and by v. 5 come yourself with speed to us again. 1 Hen. IV. i. 1 when he please again to be himself i. 2 his nose, and took 't away again i. 3 need the ransom once again of i. 3 good thoughts of the world again i. 3 nay, if you have not, to't again; we'll stay i. 3 to live me up again, being down? ii. 2 own flesh so far afoot again ii. 2 you unto you again, you are ii. 3 breathe's while, again to it again ii. 3 send him back again to my mother ii. 4 pick thee out three such enemies again ii. 4 the money shall be paid back again ii. 4 give me leave to tell you once again ii. 4 the money is paid to thee again ii. 4 some surety for a safe return again iii. 3
 I must go write again, to other friends iv. 4 will you again unknit this childish v. 1 move in that obedient orb again v. 1 never to hold it again v. 1 hal again. Said he, young Harry 2 Henry IV. i. 1 since we are o'er-set, venture again i. 1 and send you back again to your master i. 2 call him back again i. 2
 I would I might never spit white again i. 3 give us that king again, and take i. 3 but I will have some of it out again ii. 1 whether I shall ever see thee again, or no ii. 4
 I will see you ag in ere I go ii. 4 in all the luns of court again ii. 4 till he roar again. O lord! good my ii. 2 again would a go, and again would a come ii. 2 within our awful banks again iv. 1
 I never thought to hear you speak again iv. 4 you will you get me again iv. 4 a fear to be again displaced iv. 4 and, again, sir, shall we sow the v. 1 a dozen of cushions again; you have v. 4
 I see thee again; O hound of Henry V. ii. 1 bend the better eye again ii. 3 how shall I know thee again? Give iii. 3 once more come again for ransom iv. 3 once more back again; and he that iv. 5 thrice up again, and fighting iv. 6 bend of thou again, or reason iv. 7 till Harry's back-return again to France—(v. chlo.) in my cap till I see him once again v. 1 do always reason themselves out again v. 2 if Henry were recalled to life again. 1 Henry VI. i. 1 my life, my joy, again returns i. 4 again, in pity of my hard distress i. 4 once again we'll sleep secure in Ruten iii. 2 before he'll buy again at such a rate iii. 2 I'll have a bout with you again, or else iii. 2 to get the town again, or die iii. 2 like to have the overthrow again iii. 2 lost, and recovered in a day again! iii. 2 like a Frenchman; turn, and turn again! iii. 3 thus returned again, that dogged iv. 3 Ruten, so will we return again iv. 3 and turn again into the warlike v. 2

AGAIN—
 go, and be free again, as Suffolk's Henry VI. v. 3 and again, in Henry's royal v. 3
 I must trouble you again, no v. 3 hope to conquer them again 2 Henry VI. i. 1 delivered up again with peaceful i. 1 on pleased again. My lord i. 2 never mourn to trouble you again i. 3 restore this cripple to his legs again? ii. 1 toward London, back again ii. 1 from hence to prison back again ii. 3 the world may laugh again ii. 4 come to me again, and give ii. 4 he doth revive again; madam ii. 2 drove back again unto my native ii. 2 blush and beautify the cheek again ii. 2 alive again; then show me where ii. 3 in contempt, that I hit at again iv. 1
 Lent shall be as long again as it is iv. 3
 I'll read it over once again iv. 4 farewell, for I must hence again iv. 5 and that will make 'em red again iv. 7 now part them again, lest they iv. 7 are thy sovereign, Clifford kneel again v. 1 go to bed, and dream again, to keep v. 1 my father's blood open it again 3 Henry VI. i. 3 what I thus charged again; (repeated) i. 4 bethinking thee again i. 4 never henceforth shall I joy again ii. 1 making another head to fight again ii. 1
 I again bestride our foaming steeds (rep.) ii. 1
 I never pause again, never stand ii. 3 take care that I hit at again ii. 3 that hopes to rise again ii. 6 and as the air blows it to me again iii. 1 so would you be again to Henry iii. 1 should to bring him down again iii. 3 for I will hence again, I cannot iii. 7 and beat him back again iv. 8 and once again proclaim us king iv. 8 Warwick takes his gift again v. 1 will issue out again, and bid us battle v. 1 when he'll come to fight again v. 2 farewell, to meet again in heaven v. 2 doth live again in thee v. 4 take up the sword again, or take Richard III. i. 2 speak it again, and even with i. 2 will never meet again i. 2 what, if it come to thee again? i. 4 I shall be reconciled to him again i. 4 go back again, and I will send you i. 4 win our ancient right in France again iii. 1 will never meet again iii. 1 and then again begin, and stop again iii. 5 was urged to tell my tale again iii. 7 here Catebys comes again, now Catebys iii. 7 call them again, sweet prince iii. 7 let's to our holy work again iii. 7 ere I can repeat this curse again iv. 1
 I say again, give out, that Anne iv. 2 tell o'er your woes again by viewing iv. 4 will never speak to thee again iv. 4 and never look upon thee in marriage iv. 4 again shall you be mother to a king iv. 4 shall come again transformed to iv. 4 and made his course again for Bretagne iv. 4 whir these stragglers o'er the seas again v. 3 would reduce us to these times again v. 4 peace lives again; that she may long v. 4
 I say again, there is no English soul. Henry VIII. i. 1 of his master he shall again relate i. 2 understand again like honest men i. 3 a measure to let these once again i. 3 when he was brought again to the bar ii. 1 but he fell to himself again ii. 1 never found again, but where they ii. 1 for it grows again fresher than ii. 3 she's a stranger again ii. 3
 I swear again, I would not be a queen iii. 3 therefore, I say again, I utterly abhor ii. 4 that again I do refuse you for my ii. 4 call her again. Katharine queen ii. 4 and she again, is sprung up a heretic ii. 2 then, stops again, strikes his breast ii. 2
 'tis well said again; and 'tis a kind ii. 2 in spite of fortune will bring me off again ii. 2 like Lucifer, never to hope again ii. 2 or gold again the noble troops that ii. 2 you are well met once again iv. 1 then rose again, and bowed iv. 1 paced back again to York-place iv. 1 he gave his honours to the world again iv. 2 this low set me to see again iv. 2 souls with modesty again iv. 2 being but a private man again v. 2 let me never hope to see a chine again v. 3 I'll unarm again; why should I war. Troil. & Cres. i. 1 and such again, as venerable Nestor i. 2 thus once again says Nestor from i. 2 you shall make it whole again iii. 1 what! are you gone again iii. 2 what, billing again? here's iii. 2 report that he's again to the first iii. 2 reverberates the voice again iii. 3 what things again most dear iii. 3 and yet it may again, if thou iii. 3 fountain of your mind were clear again iii. 3 come, you again into my chamber iii. 2 where he answers again, because iv. 4 when shall we see again? iv. 4 O heavens! be true, again? iv. 4 when Helen is a maid again iv. 5 warm yet, let us fight again iv. 5 stand again; think'st thou to catch iv. 5 take and take again such preposterous v. 1 give 't me again. Whose was 't? (repeated) v. 2 thou never shalt mock Diomed again v. 2 and that he's my own again v. 2 age we void it up again Timon of Athens. i. 2

AGAIN—
 we'll forth again, my Alcibiades. Timon of Ath. ii. 2 as if grows again toward earth ii. 2 and come again to give answer to him iii. 1 go, bid all my friends again, Lucius, iii. 4 dares to be half so kind again? iv. 2 the wappened widow wed again iv. 3
 I see's to the April day again iv. 3
 I should let count me again the eyes of man iv. 3 returns to thine own lip again iv. 3 if I thrive well, I'll visit thee again iv. 3 hadst thou wealth again, rascals iv. 3
 I had let count me again, wert thou iv. 3 what else do I see again? iv. 3
 I see him a palm in Athens again v. 1
 I like this well, he will return again v. 2 come not to me again v. 2 go again; and after it again; and over and over v. 2 he comes, and after it again; and over and over Coriol. i. 3 we shall be charged again i. 6 if'er again I meet him beard to beard i. 10 rather have my wounds to heal again ii. 2 an 't were to give again ii. 3 and knowing myself again, repair to ii. 3 and, now again, on him, that did not ii. 3 to make road upon's again iii. 1 in our eyes see their banners wave again iii. 1 my speech, and I'll speak 't again iii. 1
 I say again, in soothing iii. 1
 he cannot be reined again to temperance iii. 3 the very hour you take it off again? iii. 3 a small thing would make it flame again iv. 3 he begins up again, and the man in iv. 5 we shall have a strife again, wild again iv. 6 thrusts forth his horns again into iv. 6 may wish good Marcius home again iv. 6
 I fear they'll roar him in again iv. 6 you know the way to the again v. 2 or capitulate again with me v. 2 every noise be still; peace yet again. Julius Caesar. i. 2 sayst thou to me now? speak once again i. 2 to him again; then he put 't by again i. 2 when he came to himself again i. 2 I'll never look you in the eye again i. 2 get'te'er to bed again, it is not day ii. 1 had thee there, and here again ii. 4 come to me again and bring me word ii. 4 he begins again to speak ii. 3 a hasty speak, and straight again ii. 3 and thou shalt sleep again; I will not ii. 3 then shall I see thee again iv. 3 sleep again, Lucius; sirrah, Claudius! iv. 3 that the sword goes up again? v. 1 whether we shall meet again, I know not v. 1 if we do meet again, why (repeated) v. 1 to yonder troops and here again v. 3 I will be there again, even with v. 3 we wish it ours again Antony & Cleopatra. i. 2 paragon again for my man i. 2 words of Pompey, return it again i. 2 but yet hie you again to Egypt ii. 3
 I say again, thy spirit is all afraid ii. 3
 the slave again; though I am ii. 5

2 amaze the welkin with your broken 1
1 ye gods, it doth amaze me, a man of 1
2 beacon fired, to amaze your eyes 1 2 and amaze, indeed, the very faculties 1
AMAZED—not amazed, as Henry V. i. 1
1 if he be not amazed, he will 1
1 if he be amazed, he will every way 1
2 stand not amazed: here is no 1
1 you stand not amazed; but so of comfort 1
2 be it amazed, right; not so 1
1 yet you are amazed; but this 1
1 my lord, I am more amazed at 1
1 I am amazed at your passionate 1
2 I am amazed, and know not what to say 1
2 amazed, my lord? why looks your 1
1 you are all amazed: here is a letter 1 2 and constancy, hath amazed me more 1
1 there I stood amazed for a while 1
2 that all amazed, the proudest fell 1
1 your strange encounter much amazed me 1
2 that I, amazed, ran from her 1
2 who can be wise, amazed, temperate 1
2 she has melted, and amazed my senses 1
2 behold, amazed, the French 1
1 why stand these royal fronts amazed? 1

 from where he should begin, and end to end, where he was to begin.
 begin it with weak straws. Julius Cesar. i. 3 a thing that others begin to do he begins again to speak.
 staled by other men, begin his fashion when love begins to sicken and decay let me did begin, there shall I end to throw Pompey the Great. Antony & Cleo. i. 6
 let us draw lots, who shall begin.
 when it appears to you where this begins mine honesty, and I, begin to square when one so great begins to rage to one of gods, begins betimes and begin the fight; our will is my desolation does begin to make Mary-buds begin to ope. Cymbeline. ii. 3 (song) our song the whilst: begins to begin and remove him. So begin I will begin the fashion, less without daughter a chastity—there it begins well, my peace we will begin read, when mine eyes begin to dazzle now begin our sorrows
 he shall, and then I will begin their mouths, if they begin to cry what they did begin, was, with the winds begin to howl ready to begin the triumph begin to part their fringes of bright begin to find an idle and fond will pack, when it begins to rain hath well beguiled the heavy gait and how beguiled he is

 you have beguiled me with a counterfeit I very much beguiled the tediousness. Richard II. ii. 3 in such distraction as beguiled all beguiled me to the very heart of loss I had beguiled myself
 he that beguiled you, in a plain accent not vanquished, but oozed and beguiled poor ropes, you are beguiled, both beguiled, divorced, wronged (rep.)
 and how beguiled he is to beguile many, and be beguiled by one

BEGUILING—beguiling virgins with. Henry V. i. 1 beguiling them of commendation BEGUN—you have often begun to tell
 I have begun, and now I begot were well begun, and well begot my lord, 'tis but begun well begun, Tranio
 I have begun to beguile
 since you have begun, have at you I have begun to plant thee things, bad begun, make strong so is my name begun. Philip. King John. i. 1
 I have begun to beguile
 let this end, where it begun my leave before I have begun begun upon an honourable respect carry armour, as she hath begun warrant, begun through malice I since we have begun to like all designs begun on earth below when such time they have begun the idea of March begun an end of what I have begun but, orderly to end where I begun [Col. Knt.] my joys were ne'er begun is begun by time
 they had begun the play BEHALF—what your gentle thoughts on his behalf shall on her behalf change slander too officious in her behalf and in that behalf, of your
 I have begun to beguile
 in the behalf of a good play very honest in the behalf of the maid in behalf of the count Roussillon suffer something in my behalf to speak in the behalf of my whisper him in your behalf in the behalf of his friend right and true behalf of thy deceased I spread his colours, boy, in thy behalf that behalf which we have challenged on our behalf, armies
 in your majesty's behalf [Knight] in his behalf, I'll empty all both in an unjust behalf
 I have much to say in the behalf
 I engross up glorious deeds on my behalf even in thy behalf, I'll thank coming in behalf of France my behalf would pluck a flower (rep.)
 I have much to say in the behalf hand of mine hath writ in thy behalf the king in my behalf along in our king's behalf, I am commanded the broker in mine own behalf
 I have much to say in the behalf
 in the duke's behalf I'll give my voice from me to my son in your behalf be eloquent in my behalf to her princes fight in thy behalf to rob in the behalf of charity modestly speak in your own behalf in my lord's behalf, I come we see, have sided in his behalf told as many lies in his behalf sands that run 'in the clock's behalf if you dare venture in your own behalf got his mortal hurt in my behalf will do all my abilities in the behalf
 I have much to say in the behalf BEHAVE—he did behave his anger BEHAVE—as he is behaved, if he how have I been behaved, that he BEHAVED—thou behavedst thyself BEHELD—thou beheldst thyself
 the hardest view of her behaviour

BEHAVIOUR—unwielded behaviour. Merry W. ii. 1 teach the children their behaviours there is a fair behaviour in thee praising behaviour to his own shadow the behaviour of the young gentleman he dedicates his behaviours to love hath in all outward behaviours seemed all his behaviours did make thee so grossly shown in thy behaviours behaviour, who were the
 and his behaviour everywhere lest, through thy wild behaviour as the behaviour of the country is over-eying of his odd behaviour maid's mild behaviour and sobriety for learning, and behaviour, fit for qualities, and mild behaviour hiding his bitter jests in his behaviour in my behaviour to the majesty borrow their behaviours from the great this loose behaviour I throw off cause hath my behaviour given to use rude behaviours, go to, kneel mark his behaviour; we are not soil, perhaps, to my behaviours when I have envied thy behaviour often nature I have envied your
 a very gross kind of behaviour to make enquiry of his behaviour your behaviour hath struck her smiles, gestures, and light behaviour
 I had take him away, as he had BEHEADED—Claudio was beheaded. Hen. VI. iv. 7 beheaded publicly by his office noble earl, and was beheaded he, shall be beheaded for it often nature I have envied your fall full our brothers were beheaded BEHELD—beheld the king my father that if you now beheld them freshly beheld our royal, good oft nature I have envied your any madness, I ever yet beheld you saw the mistress, I beheld I never yet beheld that special that have beheld me give away
 I have beheld the duke's gentleman she the fairest I have yet beheld there might you have beheld one joy till now infixed I beheld myself have you beheld, or have you read
 I have beheld the duke's gentleman
 when I beheld in London street she hath beheld the man whose of you have mine eyes beheld beheld them, when they lighted [Knt.] beheld dissever numbers that I beheld mine eyes beheld this man; commend unto never be beheld of eyes again out-lustres many I have beheld whom you Goths do behold with all his tears, and laughed strangers ne'er beheld, but wondered none that beheld him, but like lesser a contract of eternal bond of love v. 1 you make my bonds still greater Men. for Men. v. 1

 For everlasting bond of friendship Mid. N. Dr. i. 1
 I would, I had your bond (rep.) iii. 2
 I think, I may take his bond Merch. of Venice, i. 3 well then, your bond; and let me see 1. 3 seal me there your single bond 1. 3 I'll seal to another a forfeit 1. 3 a month before this bond expires 1. 3 three times the value of this bond 1. 3 yes, Shylock, I will seal unto this bond 1. 3 direction for this merry bond 1. 3 to seal love's law to a forfeit 1. 3 for the Jew's bond, which he hath 1. 3 to his bond; he was wont to call (rep.) 1. 3 forfeiture, of justice, and his bond 1. 3 six thousand, and deface the bond 1. 3 my bond to the Jew 1. 3 my bond; speak not against my bond 1. 3 that I will have my bond 1. 3 my bond; I will not hear thee (rep.) 1. 3 no speaking; I will have my bond 1. 3 may the due and the forfeit 1. 3 not draw them, I would have my bond 1. 3 seal from off my bond 1. 3 do you confess the bond? I do 1. 3 penalty and forfeit of my bond 1. 3 let the look upon the bond 1. 3 why, this bond is forfeit 1. 3 bid me tear the bond 1. 3
 I stay here on my bond 1. 3 here appeareth due upon the bond 1. 3 my bond the bond of love 1. 3 is it so nominated in the bond? 1. 3 cannot find it; 'tis not so in the bond 1. 3 this bond doth give thee here no jot 1. 3 take then thy bond, take thou 1. 3 may the bond thine be 1. 3 have mercy justice, and his bond 1. 3 than the natural bond of sisters 1. 3 O blessed bond of bond and bed 1. 3 my love hath in't a bond 1. 3 prosperity 's the very bond of love 1. 3
 I will discharge my bond 1. 3
 I am here entered in bond for you 1. 3 with my teeth my bonds in sunder 1. 3 I will loose his bonds, and gain 1. 3 thy great bond to keep me pale 1. 3 and take a bond of fate 1. 3
 I tore them from their bonds 1. 3 commit them to their bonds 1. 3 and rotten parchment bonds 1. 3
 'tis not my bond 1. 3
 'tis nothing but some bond, that 1. 3 with a bond that he is bound to 1. 3 three or four bonds of forty pounds 1. 3 would not take his bond and yours 1. 3 wouldst in bond of perpetuity 1. 3 cancel his bond of life 1. 3 aught, my bond to wedlock 1. 3 notwithstanding that your bond of duty 1. 3 should with a bond of air 1. 3 tied with the bonds of heaven 1. 3 the bonds of heaven are slipped 1. 3 for 'tis a bond in men 1. 3 to trust man on his oath or bond 1. 3 take the bonds along with you 1. 3 demands of date-bred bonds 1. 3 all bond and privilege of nature bred 1. 3 grace in captive bonds his chariot 1. 3 what other bond, than secret Romans 1. 3 within the bond of marriage 1. 3 how new it for my bond 1. 3 from a next with bonds of death 1. 3 lovers, and men in dangerous bonds 1. 3 no bond, but to do just ones 1. 3 and cancel these cold bonds 1. 3
 'tis her bond that she and my cracked 1. 3 save these in bonds; let them be 1. 3
 I love your majesty according to my bond 1. 3 the bond cracked between son 1. 3 how manifold and strong a bond 1. 3 of nature, bond of blood 1. 3 like sanctified and pious bonds 1. 3 BONDAGE—hath into bondage brought 1. 3 as bondage'er of freedom 1. 3 to increase your bondage 1. 3 thy liberty into bondage 1. 3 to be proud of thy bondage 1. 3
 'tis a hard bondage, to become 1. 3 will also be the bondage of certain 1. 3 cast off his chains of bondage 1. 3 bondage happy, to be dead (rep.) 1. 3 Cassius from bondage will deliver 1. 3 free from the bondage you are in 1. 3 languish for assured bondage? 1. 3 of women of no more bondage be 1. 3 and mine, your bondage 1. 3 most welcome, bondage! 1. 3 not born for bondage 1. 3

BONDAGE—an idle and foul bondage 1. 3 bondage is hoarse, and may not 1. 3 dotting on his own obsequious bondage 1. 3 BONDAGE—do make a bondage 1. 3
 BONDMAN—in a bondman's key 1. 3 with him his bondman, all as mad 1. 3 your bondman, Dromio? (rep.) 1. 3 so every bondman in his own hand 1. 3 speak his before we speak 1. 3 so base, that would be a bondman 1. 3 checked like a bondman; all his faults 1. 3 with Pindarus his bondman 1. 3 unenfranchised bondman 1. 3 BOND MEN—his bond-slaves 1. 3 and make your bondmen tremble 1. 3 and bowed like bondmen, kissing Caesar's 1. 3 for these base bondmen to the yoke 1. 3 BOND-SLAVE—the bond-slave 1. 3 of law is bond-slave to the law 1. 3 bond-slaves, and pagans, shall our 1. 3 BONE—fill all thy bones with aches 1. 3 of his bones are coral made 1. 3 no further, sir; my old bones ache 1. 3 will never out of my bones 1. 3 weave their thread with bones 1. 3 where my bones shall be thrown 1. 3 thy bones are hollow 1. 3 in the travel of his bones, he will not 1. 3 and sing it to thy bones, he will not 1. 3 now, unto her bones good night 1. 3 let us have t. ie bones and the bones 1. 3 latus deo, bone intelligo 1. 3
 in the travel of his bones 1. 3
 the carved bone face on his forehead 1. 3 beat not the bones of the buried 1. 3 death's head with a bone in his 1. 3 my flesh, blood, bones, and all 1. 3
 in the travel of his bones 1. 3
 the tomb of honoured bones indeed 1. 3 to lay my bones there 1. 3 to lie close by his honest bones 1. 3 my bones bear witness, that since 1. 3
 in the travel of his bones 1. 3
 thy bones are marrowless 1. 3 till from my bones my flesh 1. 3 fair fall the bones that took 1. 3 lay before this town our royal bones 1. 3 in my dead bones 1. 3 my soul, and England keep my bones 1. 3 for the bare-picked bones of majesty 1. 3 womb inherits naught but bones 1. 3 as paste and cover to our bones 1. 3 to pick back their bones under 1. 3 upon thy royal grandire's bones 1. 3 their bones with industry 1. 3 Goodman death! Goodman bones 1. 3 or lay these bones in an unworthy 1. 3 separate of their bones, if favourably 1. 3 achieve me, and then sell my bones 1. 3 leave their valliant bones in France 1. 3 fined these bones of mine for ransom 1. 3 till bones, and flesh, and sinews 1. 3
 to pick back their bones under 1. 3
 by these ten bones, my lords 1. 3 marrow, bones, and all 1. 3 that Warwick's bones may keep 1. 3 mocked the dead bones that lay 1. 3
 in the travel of his bones 1. 3 that his bones, when he has run 1. 3 to lay his weary bones among ye 1. 3 nerve and bone of Greece 1. 3 tarre the mastiffs on, as 'twere their bone 1. 3 for in my head, my bones 1. 3 vigour of bone, desert my bones 1. 3 and such an ache in my bones 1. 3 thy heart, thy sinews, and thy bone 1. 3 a goodly medicine for my aching bones 1. 3 for in my eye, for your bones 1. 3 that you may live only in bone 1. 3
 I feel't upon my bones 1. 3 consumptions sow in hollow bones of man 1. 3 flesh slide from the bone 1. 3 or I shall mark thy bones out 1. 3 my bones would rest, that have 1. 3 within my tent his bones to-night 1. 3 and the dryness of his bones 1. 3 in this earthly prison of their bones 1. 3 till Mutius bones be buried 1. 3 there lie thy bones, sweet Mutius 1. 3
 I will grind your bones to dust 1. 3 go grind their bones to powder small 1. 3 for in my hand, upon thy bones 1. 3 strike thy young bones upon my 1. 3 and tear thy flesh and bones 1. 3 her whip, or cricket's bone 1. 3 my bones ache! what a jaunt (rep.) 1. 3 is the postilion's my aching bones 1. 3 with dead men's rattling bones 1. 3 the bones of all my buried ancestors 1. 3 with some great kinsman's bone 1. 3 misery had worn him to the bones 1. 3
 for in my hand, upon thy bones 1. 3 cause mutine in a matron's bones 1. 3 nor hatchment, or his bones 1. 3 did these bones cost no more the breeding 1. 3 and hell gnaw his bones! 1. 3 BONE—of his rather than his death 1. 3 incurable bone-ache, and the rivalled 1. 3 BONELESS—from his boneless gums 1. 3
 BONEFILE—nothing but bonfires 1. 3 way to the everlasting bonfire 1. 3 an everlasting bonfire 1. 3 bonfires in France forthwith I am 1. 3
 I command the citizens make bonfires 1. 3 burn, bonfires, clear and bright 1. 3 some to make bonfires, each man 1. 3 BONE-Y—let your bones be beat 1. 3 we'll give your grace bon jour 1. 3 signior Romeo, bon jour! 1. 3

BONNE—le gentilhomme de bonne 1. 3 je suis gentilhomme de bonne maison 1. 3 BONNET—his bonnet in Germany 1. 3 your bonnet unbanded 1. 3
 O dress his bonnet with a sweweath 1. 3
 I will wear it in my bonnet 1. 3 with this bonnet in thy hand 1. 3 your bonnet to his right use 1. 3 a cherry lip, a bonny eye 1. 3 BONNY—be bith for me 1. 3 bonny Kate, and sometimes Kate 1. 3 but for my bonny Kate 1. 3 the bonny beast he loved so well 1. 3 remember first to possess his books 1. 3 bonny sweet Robin is all my joy 1. 3
 BONOS—bonos dies, sir Toby 1. 3
 BONVILLE—of the lord Bonville 1. 3
 BONY—the bony prisoner of the 1. 3 BOOK—knowing I loved my books 1. 3 here, kiss the book 1. 3 swear to that; kiss the book 1. 3 I'll to my book; for yet 1. 3 having first seized his books 1. 3 remember first to possess his books 1. 3 burn but his books 1. 3 I'll drown my book 1. 3 upon some book I love 1. 3
 I had my book of songs 1. 3 you have not the book, a right 1. 3 book of riddles! why, did 1. 3 I'll be sworn on a book, she 1. 3 and a good student from his book 1. 3 nothing in the world at his book 1. 3
 I'll be sworn, that I loved my book 1. 3
 I have unclasped to thee the book 1. 3 that cons state without book 1. 3 I'll be supposed upon a book 1. 3 the gentleman is not in your books 1. 3 tire the hearer with his books 1. 3 in my chamber window lies a book 1. 3 doth warrant the tenor of my book 1. 3 a whole book full of these quondam 1. 3 write in love's richest book 1. 3 faithfully to pore upon a book 1. 3 base authority from others' books 1. 3 daunties that are bred in a book 1. 3 and makes his book thine eyes 1. 3 where is a book? that I may 1. 3 each of you hath for me a book 1. 3 the ground, the books, the academes 1. 3 we have forsown our books 1. 3 they are the books, the arts 1. 3 doth offer to swear upon a book 1. 3
 'twas turned off me 1. 3 trees, books in the running books 1. 3 these trees shall be my books 1. 3 by the book; as you have books for 1. 3 my books, and instruments, shall be 1. 3 shall ply his book; welcome his friends 1. 3 all books of love, see that at any 1. 3 poetry, and other books, good ones 1. 3 packet of Greek and Latin books 1. 3 and you the set of books 1. 3 O and you in thy book 1. 3 father prays you leave your books 1. 3 the priest let fall the book 1. 3 priest and book, and book and priest 1. 3 name put in the book of virtue 1. 3
 'tis a book, where my book 1. 3 can in this book of beauty read 1. 3 bell, book and candle shall not 1. 3 be blotted from the book of life 1. 3 flamm'd in the book of heaven 1. 3 see the very book in which 1. 3
 I will unclasp a secret book 1. 3
 I'll be sworn upon all the books in 1. 3 by that time will our book, I think 1. 3 a star in the heaven of my thou 1. 3 two copy, and the fashioned 1. 3 that one might read the book of fate 1. 3 shut the book, and sit him down 1. 3 turning your books to graves 1. 3 seal this lawless bloody book 1. 3 how deep you were within the books 1. 3 for in the book of Numbers 1. 3 book our dead, and then to bury them 1. 3 my study and my books be false 1. 3 I'll note you in my book of memory 1. 3 is my study, and my books 1. 3 your names from books of memory 1. 3 such as by God's book are adjudged 1. 3
 'as a book in his pocket 1. 3 because my book is full 1. 3 what, at your book so hard? 1. 3 made him my book, wherein 1. 3 and, see, a book of prayer in his 1. 3 a book of prayers on their pillow lay 1. 3 by the book, he should have braved 1. 3 a beggar's book outworn's a noble's 1. 3 thou learn a prayer without book 1. 3 O like a book of sport thou'lt 1. 3 when comes your book forth 1. 3 his lance is put to their books 1. 3 is enrolled in Jove's own book 1. 3 the book of his good acts 1. 3 write his speeches in their books 1. 3 here's the book I sought for 1. 3 in my study the book of secrecy 1. 3 yet keep his book uncrossed 1. 3 a book? O rare one! 1. 3 neck, sir, in pen, book, and counters 1. 3 down to throw my books and fly 1. 3 some of my books there 1. 3 [Col. Ant.] what book? why lifts she up 1. 3 Lucius, what book is that she tosseth 1. 3 her face, the book of praises 1. 3 who has a book all of himself 1. 3
 'tis from London's books 1. 3 you have learnt it without book 1. 3 this precious book of love 1. 3

CHARGE—I charge thee, as heaven, All's Well, i. 3 had her breeding at my father's charge whoever charges on his forward breast sir, it is a charge too heavy for the charge, and thinking, shall be to charge in with our horse upon the cruffs, that you do charge men with now will I charge you in the hand do they charge us fairly? Titus And. v. 3 tell me true, I charge you I charge thee, tender Taming of Sh. i (induc.) wait on him, I charge you, as becomes a lady to bear his company ibid. i. 1 here I charge thee, tell whom thou lovest
 I charge you, in the duke's name father Baptista, I charge you, see Katharine, I charge thee, tell these do you a charge and trouble Winter's Tale i. 2 you, sir, charge him too coldly lay the old proverb to your charge
 I do in justice charge thee have about me many parcels of charge to execute the charge of my father lay't so, to his charge so great a charge from thy own the gold I gave in charge to thee thy charge. My charge was but to fetch an charge you in the duke's name Satan, avoid! I charge thee tempt
 I charge thee, Satan, housed besides the charge, the shame speak, I charge you. The earth do knock their heads against may recall, in an imperial charge shall pay this expedition's charge
 I lay not my transgression to my charge to charge me to an answer, as the pope to earnest he his charge is not 't, I take under this charge great affairs do ask some charge be it your charge to keep him safely limits of the charge set down at our own charges in charge company, for they have great charge abundance of charge too, God knows you a charge of foot rogea, but a little charge will trench you shall have a charge charge an honest woman with pickling procured thee, Jack, a charge of foot my whole charge consists of ancients but, to my charge, the king hath sent every leader to my charge going with some charge to lord John here, Pistol, I charge you with a cup I will charge you. Charge me he shall charge you, and discharge you thy armed slaves in charge the leaders, having charge from you come, I charge you both go with me be it your charge, my lord, to see or nicely charge your understanding we charge you in the name of God to render what we have in charge and upon this charge, cry and we give express charge, that I'll to my charge: if we no more meet at all expedient charge us I charge you in his majesty's name we charge and command you no better to that weighty charge remember what I gave in charge I'll stand to lay mine in charge we charge you, an allegiance away henceforth, I charge you, as you love thy father's charge shall clear thee expenses and sufficient charge
 I lay in charge to my depart own proper cost and charge costs and charges in transporting her so am I given in charge crimes are laid unto your charge a charge, lord York, that I will see and charge, that no man should I charge you, waft me safely cross I charge and command, that and we charge and command cried, charge! and give no foot cry, charge upon our feet we charge you, in God's name of marriage was the charge he gave 'long what you gave in charge tier was to the charge of his charge the skilful pilot's charge
 I charge ye, bear her hence
 I hath straightly given in charge
 we know thy charge, Brackenburg
 I lie at charge with the charging-glass
 I lay unto the grievous charge others
 I have resigned to you my charge
 I charge you, as you hope for any to take on you the charge and kingly I'll bring you to the charging-glass each leader to his several charge hee thee to thy charge every man unto his charge whom as great a charge as little you charge not in your own I'll take the charge of this give my charge up to sir Nicholas you charge me that I have blown I've done: this is my charge Crownwell, I charge thee away in those charges which will require I charge you, embrace, and love when they charge on heaps a ball of pain, and world of charge
 I charge thee, use me as thy father I'll nothing do on charge
 how now, my charge?

CHARGE—weary of this charge Timon of Ath. iii. 4 go, I charge thee: invite them all heard and charge home obey the charges of our friends heard, I charge thee, and follow in this point charge him home we charge you, that you have need not put new matter to charge the contentions, and the charges and yet to charge thy sulphur with answering us with our own charge the charges of the action if sleep charge nature to break it lead their charges off a little we will answer on their charge [Col.] charge his horns with garlands have tongue to charge me with a charge we bear 't the war that knows a warlike charge detain no jot, I charge thee go, charge Agrippa plant those that if sleep charge nature to break it let it be your charge, as it is ours here's money for thy charges this charge [Col.-change] of thoughts with this strict charge, (even as he patience, good sir, even for this charge here I charge your charity with breeding, sir, hath been at my charge goatish disposition to the charge of a star he charges home my unprovoked body I charge thee in the prince's name not vice, but full of charge upon thy life I charge thee by heaven, I charge thee, speak look 't, I charge thee, come your ways you may season it in the charge a better proposer could charge you withal compulsive ardour gives the charge this army, of such mass, and charge many such things as great charge go to answer this your charge
 I began this 'on thy love, I charge thee you charge me most unjustly I charge you, go with me therefore, go you to master charge CHARGED—my master charged she was charged with nothing but and, as thou say'st, charged my my father charged you in his will therefore, go you to master charge
 physicians have expressly charged your father charged me at our parting since I am charged in honour Antigonus, I charged thee, that she charged him with a thousand cannot, charged to the mouth anything he shall be charged with of many I am charged withal venture upon the charged chambers I shall stand sure charged for charged, but mark but the charged with this, we charged again charged us from his soul to love the king hath strictly charged we shall be charged again shall be charged no further they charged him even as those but being charged, we will be though the king hath charged you or have charged 'at the sixth hour charged me, on pain of their perpetual was't thou not charged at the peril my lady charged my duty in this business what you have charged me with I have charged and am not haunt about
 (of) his proceeding, I am charged CHARGEFUL—chargeful fashion CHARGE-HOUSE—educate the youth at the charge-house on CHARGEIT—in charging them CHARGING—in charging you with CHARIEST—the chariest maid is prodigal
CHARINESS—not sully the chariness CHARRING-CROSS—to be delivered as far as charging-cross
CHARIOT—and in a captive chariot did follow thy proud chariot wheels in captive bonds his chariot wheels when you saw his chariot but appear set thee on triumphant chariots follow his chariot like a great wheel our chariots and our horsemen be in my sword, my chariot, and horse and chariots let us have or tear them off thy chariot wheels in a chariot of inestimable value her chariot is an empty hazel-CHARITABLE—all charitable why had I not with charitable hand born under a charitable star has done me a charitable office a charitable duty of my order in such a just and charitable war I come to thee for charitable licence to stop thy devoted charitable deed why have you that charitable title what charitable men afford to beggars most charitable care have the ruddock would, with charitable bill you shall be charitable in charge for thou hast done a charitable deed a charitable wish, and full of love be thy intents wicked, or charitable for charitable prayers, shards, flints CHARITABLE—charitable charity CHARITIES—as your charities shall CHARITY—out of his charity

CHARITY—charity in thee of charity what kin are you to bound by my charity, and my might there not be a charity in no sin at all, but charity were equal poise of sin and charity induced by my charity, and hearing thy love is far from charity not charity would fulfil the law he hath a neighbourly charity
 'twere good, 'tis so much for charity let him speak; 'tis charity to show elsewhere they meet with charity 'twere charity would have lacked whom zeal and charity brought the church, offending charity for 'twere no charity; yet, to wash open as day for melting charity charity chased hence by remorse fel charity, for shame! speak not sin before, but now 'tis charity sweet saint, for charity, be not so lady, you know no rules of charity if not for charity, urge neither charity my charity is outrage, life we have done deeds of charity love, charity, obedience, and true duty
 I do it all with charity
 I do beseech your grace for charity
 I ever yet have stood to charity
 I have more charity; but say
 I am bound in charity against it the more charity, the more charity to speak him, and yet with charity love, friendship, charity, are and rob in the behalf of charity it comes in charity to thee to charity to be a deed of charity empoisoned, and with his charity slain so near the lack of charity and praise myself for charity O the charity of a penny cord we was but a deed of charity I thought it princely charity to grieve through Ephesus poured forth your charity the gods requite his charity I'll charge your charity withal that I charge thee, the duke's charity with prayers, enforce their charity that my charity be not of him perceived do poor Tom some charity, whom the foul let's exchange charity be the duke's charity, and by God's bear some charity to my wife CHARLEMAIN—great Charlemain daughter to Charlemain, who was CHARLES—officers of Charles by Gira, and by Gower monsieur Charles, what's the new news Charles, I thank thee for thy love to me tell thee, Charles, it is the stubbornest farewell to good Charles. Now will I stir I'll charge thee, the duke's charity have you challenged Charles the wrestler?
 how dost thou, Charles?
 or Charles, or something weaker but lately foil the sinewy Charles Charles' wain in a word where Charles the Great, having of Charles the duke of Lorain and Lewis the son of Charles the Great daughter to Charles, the foresaid duke line of Charles the duke's wain Charles De la bret, high constable of Charles, duke of Orleans, nephew to Charles De-la-bret high constable of the dauphin Charles is crowned Charles' wain in a word wherefore is Charles impatient that Charles the dauphin may see, noble Charles! the beacon the bastard's braves, and Charles the princely Charles of France Charles, and the rest, will take joined with Charles, the rightful with Charles, Alençon, and that the bastard, Charles, and Burgundy near knit to Charles, a man of great to Paris, royal Charles of France command the conquest, Charles Charles the dauphin is a proper man light on Charles, as a word great Charles' wain in a word
 'twere neither Charles, nor yet Charles, and the rest, it is enacted and, Charles, upon condition insulting Charles, hast thou how say'st thou, Charles?
 he is near kinsman unto Charles and the French king Charles Charles, and William de la Poole
 Charles the emperor, under pretence Charles, I will pay no more to-night but little, Charles, nor shall not
 'tis midnight, Charles, pry thee, to bed
 Charles, good-night—Well, sir I'll charge thee with a charm all the charms of Syracos my high charms work, and these some wanton charm upon this man my charms crack not you'll charm so strong, your charms my charms 'll break
 this airy charm is for the charm dissolves all now my charms are all o'erthrown I'll charm you with a charm
 I have no other charms
 she works by charms, by spells

CITY—this city now by us besieged . . . King John, ii. 2 there's that will sack a city . . . Henry IV, v. 3 a city on the inconstant . . . Henry V, iii. (chorus) before him, though the city be . . . v. (chorus)
 many would the peaceful city quit cannot see many a fair French city tower, to overpeer the city . . . Henry VI, i. 4 this city must be furnished . . . iii. 1 city the city of London, pity these are the city gates, the gates of . . . iii. 2 sacks shall be a mean to sack the city open your city gates, be humble . . . iii. 2 in the famous ancient city, Tours . . . 2Henry VI, i. 1 when in the city Tours thou ranst . . . 1. 3 and therefore in this city will I stay . . . iv. 4 to spoil the city, and your royal court to defend the city from the rebels . . . iv. 4 now is Mortimer lord of this city . . . iv. 6 that of the city's cost . . . iv. 6 defer the spoil of the city until night . . . iv. 7 the city favours them . . . 3Henry VI, i. 1 marched through the city to . . . v. 1 Warwick, will thou open the city gates the city being but of small defence . . . v. 1 his enforcement of the city wives . . . Richard III, iii. 7 seems disgraceful in the city's eye . . . iii. 7 to hear the city abused extremely . . . Henry VIII, (chorus)

 I wonder now how yonder city stands make not a city feast of it . . . Timon of Athens, iii. 6 some high-vice city hang his name . . . iv. 3 that thou art out of the city . . . v. 3
 I the cause against thy city . . . v. 3
 Timon to our city's love . . . v. 5
 into our city with thy banners . . . v. 5 regular justice in your city's bounds . . . v. 5 bring me into your city . . . v. 5 the other side of the city, Sicily . . . Coriolanus, i. 1 several places of the city you cry . . . 1. 1 they say, the city is well stored . . . 1. 1 should have first unroofed the city . . . 1. 1 but issue forth from the city . . . 1. 4 alone, to answer all the city . . . 1. 4 numbers to make good the city . . . 1. 5 and city, we render you the tenth go you to the city; learn, how . . . 1. 9
 'tis south the city is the city . . . 1. 9
 how you are censured here in the city the mortal gate of the city . . . 1. 11 called both field and city ours . . . 1. 12 to unbuild the city (repeated) . . . 1. 12
 the people are the city . . . 1. 11 that is the way to lay the city flat . . . 1. 11
 the viper that would depopulate the city our good city cleave in the midst . . . 1. 12
 this instant, banish him our city . . . 1. 13
 the city, thus turn my back . . . 1. 13
 let a guard attend us through the city a goodly city is this Antium: city . . . 1. 14
 I the city of kites and crows, I the city to melt the city leads upon the city . . . 1. 15 who did hook and draw the city . . . 1. 16
 the intended fire your city is . . . 1. 16
 I am hushed until our city be afire . . . 1. 17 that shall our poor city find . . . 1. 17 senators, patricians, a city full . . . 1. 17 they are near the city . . . 1. 17 go tell the lords of the city, I am . . . 1. 17
 the city ports by this hath entered . . . 1. 17 your city Rome (I say, your city) . . . 1. 17 though in this city, the widows . . . 1. 17
 the city cast her people out . . . 1. 17 enter the city, clip your wives . . . 1. 17 din blast you the city's ear . . . 1. 17
 the hills adjoining to the city . . . 1. 17 did you but know the city's walls . . . 1. 17 this day within the city walls . . . 1. 17 is not your city strong? . . . 1. 17
 this city then, Antioch the great, Pericles, i. (Gower) and therein Clarence shall not want . . . 1. 6

 ah, forward Clarence! how civil it . . . 1. 6 and thou art so far from a wife . . . 1. 6 well-minded Clarence, be thou fortunate . . . 1. 6 guess, how high is Clarence now? . . . 1. 1 then Clarence is at hand, I hear his . . . 1. 1 and lo, where George of Clarence sweeps . . . 1. 6 come, Clarence, come, thou shalt . . . 1. 6 that Clarence is so harsh, so blunt . . . 1. 6 good Clarence; this is brother-like . . . 1. 1 what Clarence, but a quicksand . . . 1. 4 Clarence, excuse me to the king . . . 1. 5
 thank, Clarence, thank, Clarence . . . 1. 5 good Clarence, do; sweet Clarence . . . 1. 5 or else come after . . . i. 5.

come York, and Richard, Warwick . . . i. 6.
anon the deer will come . . . i. 1.
here comes a man, let's away . . . i. 1.
not a man come, what redress . . . i. 1.
ay, but she's come to beg . . . i. 1.
and come some other time, to know . . . i. 2.
an come to crave thy just . . . i. 3.
I come in kindness, and with goodness . . . i. 3.
for-bar this talk; here comes the king . . . i. 2.
where Somerset and Clarence come . . . i. 2.
come on, my masters, each man . . . i. 3.
and come now to create you . . . i. 3.
they he comes towards London . . . i. 4.
come therefore, let us by . . . i. 4.
comes hunting this way . . . i. 5.
come then, away; let's have . . . i. 5.
come hither, England's hope . . . i. 6.
come therefore, let's show it speedily . . . i. 6.
but, why come you in arms? . . . i. 7.
back that come to succour you . . . i. 7.
the lords and gentlemen to come with . . . i. 8.
in London, till we come to him . . . i. 9.
is sportful Edward come? . . . i. 9.
come, Warwick, take the time . . . i. 1.
see, where Oxford comes! . . . i. 2.
who is night? come to me, friend . . . i. 2.
come quickly Montague, or I am dead . . . i. 2.
and lo, where youthful Edward comes . . . i. 2.

I know, in content comes along . . . i. 4 pray thy graces to come near . . . i. 1 we come not by the way of accusation . . . i. 2 not to come off; in his displeasure . . . i. 2 is he ready to come abroad? . . . i. 2 where high profits might come home . . . i. 2 my endeavours have ever come too short . . . i. 2 the third day, comes a frost, a killing . . . i. 2 you come to take your stand here . . . i. 1 when it comes, Grammer will find . . . i. 2 is come to lay his weary bones . . . i. 2 that comfort comes too late . . . i. 2
I am happily come hither . . . i. 1 come, come, give me your hand . . . i. 1 you shall see this maning robe before us . . . i. 1 else will witness would come against you . . . i. 1 come back? what mean you? I'll not come . . . i. 1 let him come in. Your grace . . . i. 2 in judgement comes to hear . . . i. 2 but know, I come not to hear . . . i. 2 come, lords, we trife time away . . . i. 3 with the great fool to come . . . i. 3

Cressid comes into my thoughts (rep.) . . . i. 1
I cannot come to Cressid but by Pandar . . . i. 1 Troilus will not come far behind him . . . i. 2 not come to you, you shall tell me (rep.) . . . i. 2 when comes Troilus? I'll show you . . . i. 2 an the devil come to him, it's all one . . . i. 2 yonder comes Paris, yonder comes Paris . . . i. 2 what speaking follow comes yonder? . . . i. 2 here come those asses, fools . . . i. 2 tell him I come; I doubt, he be hurt . . . i. 3 that we come short of our suppose . . . i. 3 comes from Troy. Nor I from Troy come . . . i. 3 if any come, Hector shall honour . . . i. 3 of things to come at large . . . i. 3

COME—Ajax come safe off. . . Troilus & Cressida, i. 3 then would come some matter from . . . i. 1
'Come any more to your tents . . . i. 1 that mass of men to come . . . i. 2 in time to come, canonize us . . . i. 2 good Theristes, come in and rail . . . i. 2 and discipline come not near thee! . . . i. 3 art thou come? why, I chidee . . . i. 3 look you, who comes here! . . . i. 3 come in with me, Theristes . . . i. 3 may easily untie: here comes Atrocilus . . . i. 3 we come to speak with him (rep.) . . . i. 3 fresh kings are come to Troy . . . i. 3 come knights from east to west . . . i. 3
I come to speak with Paris from . . . i. 1.
O here he comes: how now, how now? . . . i. 2 she'll come straight: you must . . . i. 2 come your ways, come your ways . . . i. 2 come draw this curtain . . . i. 2 come in, come in; I'll go get . . . i. 2 business comes to me . . . i. 2
I shall, in the world to come . . . i. 2 live to come in my behalf . . . i. 3
I will come last; 'tis like . . . i. 3 what, comes the general to speak . . . i. 3 to come as humbly . . . i. 3 Hector to come unarm'd . . . i. 3
I come from the worthy Achilles . . . i. 3 my lord, come you again into . . . i. 2 pray you, come in I would not . . . i. 2 to her you come; if you come . . . i. 2 here, here he comes: ah sweet ducks! . . . i. 4 have patience; she shall come anon . . . i. 4 good brother, come you hither . . . i. 4 a coasting welcome ere it comes . . . i. 5
I come comes the rock of Troy . . . i. 5 half Hector comes to seek this . . . i. 5 great Agamemnon comes to meet . . . i. 5 what's past, and what's to come . . . i. 5 here comes Theristes. How now . . . i. 1 here comes himself . . . i. 1 there will come some change . . . i. 1 she comes to you. Stand where . . . i. 2 Cressid come forth to him . . . i. 2 either once again to come . . . i. 2 shall I come? the hour? ay, come . . . i. 3 day is ominous; therefore, come back . . . i. 3 humble I come to lose my arm . . . i. 4 soft! here come Sleeve, and I' other . . . i. 3 neck and chin, come to my . . . i. 4 come both, you ogging Greys . . . i. 6 come hereabout me, you my myrindons . . . v. 7 how ugly night comes breathing . . . i. 9 when comes your book forth? . . . Finnion of Athens, i. 1 to do this come off you . . . i. 1 bid him come to me . . . i. 1 look, who comes here . . . i. 1 so they come by dead bellies . . . i. 2
I come to have thee thrust me out . . . i. 1
I come to observe of you . . . i. 1 that I might come nearer to you . . . i. 2 there comes with them a forerunner . . . i. 2 and come freely to gratulate . . . i. 2 they only now come but to feast . . . i. 2 what I sweep of, I sweep away! . . . i. 2 what will this come to? . . . i. 2 it comes in charity to thee . . . i. 2 and come with better music . . . i. 2 what, you come for money? . . . i. 2 here comes the rock of Troy . . . i. 2 stay, stay, here comes the fool . . . i. 2 no, 'tis to thyself; come away . . . i. 2 here comes my mistress' page . . . i. 2 when men come to sorrow . . . i. 2 aside, here comes lord Finus . . . i. 2 the future comes apace . . . i. 2
I come to entreat your honour . . . i. 1 and come again to supper to him . . . i. 1 is my lord ready to come forth . . . i. 3 but banishment? it comes not ill . . . i. 5 he sent to me, sir—here he comes . . . i. 6 yonder comes a poet, and a painter . . . i. 3 come nearer; then I love thee . . . i. 3 suspect still comes where an estate . . . i. 3 may profit meet, and come too late . . . i. 1 we are hither come to offer you . . . i. 1 by some course, and come to me . . . i. 1 come not near him, if thou wouldst not . . . i. 2 come hither, ere my life hath left . . . i. 2 come not to me again . . . i. 2 thither come, and let my gravestone . . . i. 2 here come our brothers . . . i. 3 come, come. Soft; who comes here? . . . Coriolanus, i. 1 at it proceeds, comes . . . i. 3 the lady Valeria is come to visit you . . . i. 3 come on, you cowards; you were got . . . i. 3 over and over he comes, and up again . . . i. 4 yonder comes news: a wager . . . i. 4 come on, my fellows, come . . . i. 4 come on; if you'll stand fast . . . i. 4 we are come off like Romans . . . i. 6 come I too late? The shepherd . . . i. 6 he was wont to come home wounded . . . i. 1 he comes the third time home . . . i. 1 had I come coffined home . . . i. 1 to Coriolanus come all joy and honour! . . . i. 2 he comes, and in his hand . . . i. 2 to come by him where he stands . . . i. 3 here comes a brace; you know . . . i. 3 here come more voices—your voices . . . i. 3 come away. 'Tis man has married . . . i. 1 ere, how comes 't that you have hold . . . i. 1 he must come, or what is worse . . . i. 1 come all to ruin; let thy mother . . . i. 2 and come home beloved of all . . . i. 2 what, will he come? He's come . . . i. 3 well, here he comes, ah, I do . . . i. 3 here comes his mother . . . i. 2

COME—hope to come upon them Coriolanus, iv. 3 but come in: let me commend iv. 6 some news is come of Coriolanus iv. 6 here come the clusters iv. 7 when he shall come to his account iv. 7

CONDAMNED—the man condemned. Mea. for Mea. ii. 2
I have a brother condemned to die
why every fault's condemned Claudio is condemned for untrusting condemned upon the act (rep.) on this man condemned as if my brother thou 'rt condemned, but those condemned for pride and scorn will be condemned into everlasting than one condemned by the king's Winter's Tale, ii. 2 poor thing, condemned to loss I'll shall be condemned upon surmises by law thou art condemned to die. Comedy of Err. i. 1 unreparable condemned blood.
king stands generally condemned
I shall stand condemned my condemned lord is doomed a prisoner the poor condemned English condemned to die for treason that sorceress, condemned to burn tell you whom you have condemned he be condemned by course of law thus two friends condemned embrace truly is he, and condemned upon it.
I stand condemned for this.
In your condemned seat
I had as lief be a condemned man you are condemned, our general you have condemned and noted you yourself are much condemned the condemned Forto own tongue thou art condemned be pitiful to my condemned sons thy brothers are condemned, and dead thy brothers were condemned to death where thou dost condemn condemned villain, I do apprehend.
myself condemned, and myself excused CONDENNING—condemning some condemning shadows quite CONDISENSE—condense
if thou wilt descend to be CONDIGN—in thy condign praise never gave them condign punishment CONDITION—mark his condition
now the condition
I am, in my condition, a prince the cat-log of her conditions leave her on such slight conditions taint the condition of this present yes, and his condition
a light condition in a beauty if he have the condition of a saint.
as are expressed in the condition the hot condition of their blood in the gentle condition of blood forget the condition of my estate such is now the duke's condition are words, and poor conditions demand of him my conditions they know my conditions and lay take her dowry with this condition our soft conditions, and our hearts the condition of that fardel whose heat hath my condition what condition stands (rep.)
my condition, which hath been this same time's condition suffer the condition of these times that condition, that condition no conditions of our peace can stand as our conditions shall consist upon of what condition are you?
I, in my condition, shall better
I do welcome the conditions despatched, with fair conditions his senses have but human conditions O hard condition! twin-born with this day shall gentle his condition teach you a good condition and my condition is not smooth a hard condition for a maid to draw conditions of a friendly peace upon condition I may quietly enjoy the conditions of our league upon condition thou wilt swear shall our condition stand?
of so mean condition, may pass a great queen, with this condition my degree, or my conditions
I have a touch of your condition and those of true condition either (for so run the conditions) like conditions as our argument condition, I will rather come to India custom, and condition, made tame he cares not, he'll obey conditions you see how all conditions well expressed in our condition I'll trust to your condition back on good condition. Condition?
condition! what good condition
'tis a condition they account gentle to yield to his conditions once more offered the first condition on like conditions, will have can alter the condition of a man?
under these hard conditions thus to commit to your weak conditions much prevailed on your condition upon condition Publius shall not live our conditions so differing I embrace these conditions for condition, a short of the qualities quiet and gentle thy conditions!
I makes not up on such conditions imperfections of long-engraved condition stars above us, govern our conditions would I were under thy conditions not my unhusched free condition put did you confer with him?

on whom I may confer what I for a man and his glass to confer confer with me of murder and of CONDIT—conduct
CONDIT—conduct
CONFERENCE—of sad conference

CONFERENCE—words conference the conference was sadly borne to hear our conference
I will overhear their conference takes the meaning, in love's conference impertinence personal conference so sensible seemed the conference yet she urged conference with gentle conference, soft, and I must be present at your conference conference, about some gossip it was the copy of our conference I got to you in our last conference break off your conference conference with your grace alone
I, I must have some conference the mutual conference that my not willing any longer conference use further conference with Warwick no man shall have private conference
I forbear your conference with the noble
I have some conference with his grace private conference. We are busy to know the secret of your conference?
being crossed in conference by I will see and I will see conference till we have done our conference the time with conference harsh opportunity of a second conference not a man in private conference

CONFESS—as I confess you'll not confess, you'll not confess I here'll in some sort confess albeit I will confess though, I confess, on base
I confess, much like the confessor most freely I confess, myself
I confess a mortal guiltiness
I do confess it, and myself I confess the truth, and say by whose till she herself confess it
I do confess I ne'er was married
I must confess to truth
she would sooner confess perjury
I confess not that you know
I confess nothing, nor I deny nothing
I must confess, that I have heard
I hereupon confess, I am low
I must confess, made mine eyes waste sir, I confess the wench
I do confess much of the hearing
I confess both; they are both
I will hereupon confess, I am low in so unseemingly to confer receipt my lord, guilty; I confess, I confess let us confess, and turn it to a jest confess what treason there is I'll confess to you (rep.)
do you confess the bond?
I confess, your coming before wherein I confess me much guilty than to confess she does I do confess, I confess to you thy checks confess it, one to the other then, I confess, here on my knee my heart will not confess he owes I will confess what I know without I will do done, as I will do done with yourself, confess 'twas hers
I do confess the ring was hers in plainness do confess to these
I struck in years, I must confess
I may confess to you, sir, I am low
I confess the cape. With a trunk confess, confess; hath he not (rep.) if thou wilt confess, (or else be I do confess, I loved him, as in
I must confess to you, sir, I am low but I confess, sir, that were heard you confess, you had (to confess) could he get me and though thou now confess, thou didst
I may confess to you, sir, I am low
the sacrament, I did confess it
I confess thy treasons, ere thou fly
I must needs confess, because I confess thee, you picked
I must confess to you, sir, I am low two things, I confess, I cannot help
I shall drive you then to confess
I do confess my fault; and do
I will confess to you, sir, I am low
I will confess to you, sir, I am low
I will confess to you, sir, I am low yet I confess, that often ere this day and you must all confess that I these news, I must confess, are full confess why she should be, as plucked timorously confess the manner
I will confess she was not Edward's they all confess, there is indeed I must now confess, if they have any
I may confess to you, sir, I am low my sovereign, I confess, your royal for so 'tis, I must confess white hand, I must needs confess if you'll confess, he brought
I will confess my guilt of this I must needs confess, I have highest hill of this day's journey ii. 5 the day is hot, the Capulets abroad iii. 1 for now, these hot days, is the mad iii. 1 this day's black fate on more days doth iii. 1 Romeo come, thou day in night! iii. 2 so tedious is this day, as is the night alack, the day! he's gone, he's killed it did, it did; alas, the day; it did iii. 2 or by the break of day, I signed day who by this day? My day, my lord iii. 3 it is not yet near; it was the day iii. 5 and jound day stands tiptoe on iii. 5 let's talk, it is not day iii. 5 hence with huns-up to the day iii. 5 the day is broke, be wary (rep.) iii. 5 every day I'll the hour, for in (rep.) iii. 5 sorted out a sudden day of joy iii. 5 in happy time, what day is that? iii. 5 day, night, late, early, at home iii. 5 crimes i. 6

O day and night, but this is wondrous i. 5
I saw him yesterday, or 't'other day ii. 1

DAY—being of so young days brought up. Hamlet, ii. 2
 Day is day, night, night, and time (rep.) iii. 2 all his days of quiet with tribulation iii. 1 how does your honour for this many a day and repose, lock from me, day, and night beguile the tedious day with sleep iii. 2 as the bitter day would quake to look on this phylis but poor polly by sickly days
 'tis saint Valentine's day (song) 2 as day does to your age iv. 5 ere we were two days old at sea iv. 6 (letter) of all the days I' the year, I came (rep.) v. 1 it was that very day that young Hamlet
